Speech before the Assembly Budget Committee

Glenn A. Grant, J.A.D.
Acting Administrative Director of the Courts

Good afternoon Chairman Schaer, Vice-Chairman Burzichelli, and other members of the Assembly Budget Committee.

With me today are Assignment Judges Yolanda Ciccone, Ronald Bookbinder, Peter Bariso Jr., Karen Cassidy and Stuart Minkowitz, as well as the director of our Office of Management and Administrative Services, Shelley Webster.

We welcome this opportunity to appear before you today and update the Assembly on the continuing efforts of the state's judicial branch of government.

In that regard, I want to publicly acknowledge the outstanding work of Chief Justice Stuart Rabner, the other members of the Supreme Court, the judges in all of our divisions: appellate, civil, criminal, family and tax court, our administrative staff, and all of our Judiciary employees who make sure our court system operates efficiently, independently and fairly every day. Their efforts reflect a strong commitment to honor the core values and principles that guide the New Jersey Judiciary.

I am pleased to report that the Judiciary continues to act as wise and prudent stewards of the public funds utilized for the operation of our courts.

In fact, our FY17 appropriations request represents only 2 percent of the state budget. From my perspective, our appropriations request has three broad foundations: (1) to provide sufficient funding for our organizational staffing in order to handle the approximately 1.1 million cases that are filed in our courts each year; (2) to maintain and expand the Judiciary's information technology infrastructure which, as you know, serves as a backbone for much of the criminal justice system; and (3) to continue the decades-old collaboration and partnership with the other two branches of government to tackle some of the most intractable problems confronting the communities of this state.

Those foundations have been tested as the demands placed on the court system continue to increase without the corresponding timely replacement of our judicial workforce.

Through the work of our talented and dedicated judges and staff, we have overcome ongoing challenges such as judicial vacancies, the continued downsizing of government and the increased demands for the Judiciary's participation in addressing significant societal challenges.

The Judiciary, through its partnerships with the executive and legislative branches, continues to bring about improvements to our society while generating economies and savings to the state budget.

We've collaborated on policy initiatives and programs designed to address some of the most challenging issues facing the citizens of New Jersey, using the courts as a vehicle to advance the mutual interest of creating a fairer and more just society.

For example, through our partnerships with the other two branches of government, we've created a special program to help returning veterans locate the services they need to get back on their feet. Our drug courts help those with substance abuse problems overcome their addictions so they can reclaim their lives and become productive members of society. We've also worked together on solutions to better address the scourges of domestic violence, elder abuse and human trafficking. However, the Judiciary's participation in these therapeutic solutions to societal problems must have a sustainable and consistent allocation of judicial and staffing resources in order to remain successful.

These programs would also not be possible without the efficiencies created by our technological applications, which allow the Judiciary to handle an ever-increasing volume and diversity of cases before our courts.

In that regard, New Jersey has benefitted from a statewide system of data exchange that does not exist in most other states.

In short, we are proud of the partnership and collaboration between the three branches of government but are also cognizant of the challenges to providing quality service and most importantly justice to the communities of this state.

Rather than summarize the long list of Judiciary achievements from the last fiscal year, I would like to close my remarks by focusing on what I believe is one of the most important initiatives ever undertaken by the State of New Jersey.

Effective January 1, 2017, the state's criminal justice system will transform from an antiquated, arbitrary cash bail system to a fairer, safer, swifter, smarter and more efficient operation for administering criminal justice in our state.

This effort is, once again, a partnership among all three branches of government, each of which decided that there needed to be a new and greater way of handling pre-trial detention for criminal cases. This change also includes the support of the citizens of the State of New Jersey who enacted a constitutional amendment authorizing certain high risk defendants to be detained before trial without bail. I'd like to provide some background on how we arrived at this historic point.

A March 2013 study of New Jersey's county jail population found that 39 percent of inmates were eligible to be released on bail but remained incarcerated not because they had committed a violent crime, or because they had a history of failing to appear in court, but because they lacked the financial resources to post bail. Of perhaps even greater concern, 12 percent of inmates remained in jail due to their inability to post bail of $2,500 or less.

The impact for defendants in such instances can be life-altering. While in jail, awaiting a trial that will determine if they are innocent or guilty, defendants lose access to their families and, in some cases, may end up losing their jobs.

Conversely, under our traditional bail system, defendants charged with violent crimes who pose a risk of reoffending, or a risk of flight, can still be released from jail until trial simply because they do have access to clean money. Such instances create an obvious public safety issue for witnesses and the community at-large. In other words, our bail system is based on an arbitrary factor that has a disproportionately punitive effect on the poorest of our citizens and does not protect the public at large. New Jersey, to its credit, took action to become early leaders in a national movement to find a better way to administer justice.

This criminal justice reform initiative reaffirms something very special about our state. We – the three branches of government -- have collectively been working for several decades to improve on the nation's promise to provide equal access to justice for all. We were the second state to have a statewide Public Defender's office. We were one of the first states to examine the constitutionality of the death penalty.

We were the first state to create a statewide drug court program. We are the only state with an Intensive Supervision Program designed to remove prisoners from state prison. We are a model JDAI state resulting in a remarkable reduction in juvenile detention population.

We are a state willing to help former prisoners to focus on the obstacles for individuals attempting re-entry into society after prison. The New Jersey Judiciary is proud of its role in helping to implement these and other programs to improve the quality of life for citizens, visitors and businesses in our state and we are proud of the collaborative partnership currently underway between state, county, and local governmental partners to implement criminal justice reform. It is a landmark transformation that will require innovation, cooperation and resources.

We believe that even during these challenging times we will be able to improve upon our system of criminal justice because of the great work of the men and women of the courts.

There are many challenges ahead. It is crucially important that we are able to confront those challenges with sufficient staffing, proper resources and a continued collaborative approach that works for the better good of all New Jersey residents.

With that, I thank you for your time today and I would be happy to answer any questions you may have.
